30th Legislative Session

The 30th legislative session commenced on January 17th, 2017, swearing-in a sea of new faces and the selection of the House of Representatives first Alaska Native Speaker, Representative Bryce Edgmon.

Our primary goal and focus this upcoming legislative session is the fiscal situation and how we can align state spending with available revenues.

I personally look forward to working hard to find a reasonable and fair solution.

Committee Meetings

We kicked off the 30th Legislative Session getting right into committee work.

I sit on two standing committees, Labor & Commerce and State Affairs.

In Labor & Commerce we have heard and participated in many presentations and department overviews. We will be hearing our first bills this week, House Bill (HB) 18, Race Classics and HB 49, Extended Board of Direct-Entry Midwives.

In State Affairs we heard testimony on HB 16, appropriate training of law enforcement officers and the interactions with people with disabilities.

To view both House and Senate committee meetings you can go to BASIS, where you will find a daily agenda, the type of testimony being heard, and documents related to that upcoming meeting. Or download the Alaska Legislative app on your smart phones.

Please contact my office if you have additional questions about any of the bills before our committees.

House Republicans

House
Republicans

For the first time in years the Republicans are not in the Majority in the House. Our 18-member strong House Republican Caucus released its organization, and stands ready to work with the new incoming House Democrats, Alaska Senate and Governor's Administration.

The leadership team of the new House Republican

Caucus consists of House Minority Leader, Charisse Millett, House Minority Whip, Mike Chenault, Minority Floor Leader, Dan Saddler, and Minority Finance Leader, Lance Pruitt.

The Floor Leader will assist the House Republicans with motions and issues that arise during floor sessions, and will coordinate the communications and press for the House Republicans. The Finance Leader will guide the caucus on issues pertaining to Alaska's budget and fiscal issues.

For more up-to-date news and information on our members, we have created a website specifically to Alaska House Republicans.
